Is it permissible for women to wear high-heeled shoes?

Praise to be Allah

This is not permissible. It involves resembling the disbelieving women, or the wicked women. It has its origins amongst the Jewish women before Islaam. When one of them wanted to attend a gathering where her lover was present, she would wear a pair of high shoes for him to see her, being taller. Then after a time, those became high-heeled shoes. Further, that type of shoe changes a woman's way of walking, causing her to tilt from left to right, and therefore, the wicked and unbelievers choose this type of shoe. Therefore, a Muslim woman following the Sharee'ah (Islaamic Law) should not wear high-heeled shoes; especially since many times it causes her to fall!

Muhammad Naasirud-Deen al-Albaanee